Coronavirus now in state

Bigger threat locally plain old influenza

By MARK CAMPBELL AND COLLIN OVERTON
Courier staff writers

Just hours before health officials confirmed the first case of coronavirus in Indiana, local healthcare providers were saying for now the bigger threat around here is the Type A and Type B influenza that has already killed 69 people in Indiana this flu season.

State Health Commissioner Dr. Kris Box said Friday that the man who tested positive in Indianapolis had traveled to Boston where he was exposed to others with COVID-19.

"What we're telling people is you should be worried about the flu we're dealing with in this area rather than the one going on in other places," said Marsha Chapman, an infection prevention nurse at King's Daughters' Health in Madison. "... We've had 69 deaths from the flu. So that's our bigger threat right now."

The man who ended up testing positive for COVID-19 in Indianapolis presented with a sore throat, cough and low-grade fever. However, he waited in the parking lot until hospital staff came to him and took him through a side entrance to an isolation room for treatment and testing, said Dr. Ram Yeleti, Community Health Network's chief physician executive.

Yeleti said the man did not need to remain hospitalized and was in stable condition in self-quarantine early Friday with "minimal to zero exposure" to other hospital patients.

"At this time, we do not see any evidence for any spread of this," Yeleti said.

Gov. Eric Holcomb announced he was declaring a public health emergency in order to obtain federal funding for coronavirus response.

Meanwhile, as most of the world focuses concern on the deadly coronavirus — more than 100,000 cases have been diagnosed worldwide with more than 3,000 deaths in China and 14 in the US — local healthcare providers are dealing with the Type A and Type B influenza that has already killed 69 people in Indiana — but none locally — this flu season and the number of cases is higher this week than last.

Chapman said KDH, and the state, has seen an increase in influenza cases over the past week. Type A and Type B influenza are widespread and highly active statewide and KDH made 16 diagnoses locally on Friday and was up to 59 for the week. That's more than the previous week but well below the current flu season peak of just over 100 cases.

However, four people are currently hospitalized for the flu at KDH and so it remains a big concern locally, Chapman said.

That's not to say that the local hospital and clinics are not putting plans and procedures in place to deal with COVID-19. Chapman said health care workers are already screening patients and taking precautions with anyone who has traveled in areas hit by COVID-19 or showing symptoms that are common with the coronavirus.

"We've got masks out and signs up and a screening process to ask patients if they've traveled or come into contact with someone who has.

Recommendations given for 2-mile buffer zone

By COLLIN OVERTON
Courier staff writer

County and City of Madison officials presented five recommendations for the two-mile buffer zone between Madison and Hanover Wednesday night, which has residents of the area confused over which rules to follow.

It was the third public meeting on the zone since October of 2018, when then-Commissioner Norbert Schafer suggested the county withdraw from the agreement establishing the area with the City of Madison and Town of Hanover. After a yearlong debate, Jefferson County took action and rescinded the ordinance at the end of 2019. County and city representatives met twice last month to take public input and discuss ways all parties could improve the agreement.

A committee including Madison Mayor Bob Courtney, Warren Auxier, president of the Jefferson County Plan Commission and Commissioner Robert Little presented the next steps and took questions from residents of the zone, occasionally referring to legal counsel on murkier issues.

"If we can turn our attention toward 'how can we make this process better so that the community feels that they have a better interest, a vetted interest in the process?' — I think that's what we want to work on tonight. And so Warren and I and others, both on the county and city plan commission have worked together to come up with some joint recommendations," Courtney said.

The team's first recommendation was for County Commission to reverse its recession from the buffer zone at its Thursday, March 5 meeting the next day. Commissioners Thursday decided to table that action until their March 19 meeting after they had more time to discuss it with legal counsel.

"Talking with our counsel, we need to make sure what we need to do that does that appropriately," Commissioner David Bramer said. "We're going to take that under advisement and move on that at our next meeting. Right now it's on a 180-day pause anyway, so nothing's going into effect, but we just want to talk with our attorney and see what steps we need to do."

Regatta plans Gala Dinner for 70th

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Courier staff writer

Unlimited hydroplane racing fans have two reasons to be excited about this year's Madison Regatta. Not only will the city be hosting the prestigious APBA Gold Cup for the second-straight year, but it will also be the 70th running of the Indiana Governor's Cup.

To mark the special occasion, the Madison Regatta will hold a special 70th Anniversary Gala Dinner on Saturday, June 20 at the Broadway Tavern and Livery Stable. The exclusive event will feature former Miss Madison drivers Buddy Byers, Ron Snyder and Steve David, as well as current team driver Jimmy Shane, as speakers as well as Madison Mayor Bob Courtney. Hydroplane racing announcer Jeff Ayler, of Madison, will serve as master of ceremonies.

"Since this is the 70th year, we wanted to do something special and we think this will be a really nice event," said Nate Davis, a Madison Regatta past president, who is heading up the event. "We don't really care about making money, we just want to celebrate the race and the history involved."

The four drivers announced for the event account for 30 of Miss Madison's 33 all-time wins. Byers was the first pilot to steer the team to victory, winning a race in Guntersville, Alabama, in 1965. Snyder won a race in Lake-of-the-Ozarks, Missouri, in 1983 while David's 15 wins are the most with the team by a Miss Madison driver. Shane, who has driven for the team since 2014, has 13 wins with Miss Madison Racing and 19 overall, the sixth-

Daylight Saving Time begins at 2 a.m. Sunday – set clocks forward 1 hour

Spring forward on Sunday

Courier staff report

Daylight Saving Time will begin at 2 a.m. on Sunday, March 8, with all local counties and cities advancing their clocks by one hour.

Most clocks, such as those on cell phones, computers and cable TV boxes, make the adjustment automatically, but microwaves, wall clocks and older alarm clocks will have to be adjusted manually.

The best way to handle the switch is to set clocks ahead by one hour before going to bed Saturday night. A good way to avoid a hangover from the change in time is to go to sleep an hour earlier than normal.

Most of Indiana and Kentucky — including the entire Courierarea — is located in the Eastern Daylight Time Zone (EDT).

It wasn't until March of 2006 that all of Indiana observed Daylight Saving Time. Two states — Hawaii and Arizona — still do not and many other states consider legislation annually to walk back the change in favor of a calendar without time changes.

Indiana's decision to join other states who change time annually in the spring and fall came after then-President George W. Bush signed the Energy Policy Act in 2005 to establish a new timetable for Daylight Saving Time.

Daylight Saving Time will end at 2 a.m. on Sunday, Nov. 1, when clocks are set back an hour, giving everybody back that hour of sleep they'll miss this weekend.

One helpful reminder that is now paired with the semiannual time switch, is a recommendation by firefighters to either check or replace batteries in smoke detectors and carbon monoxide detectors at each time change. To that end, Madison Fire Department offers a free program to install new or check and replace inoperable smoke alarms for any single-family or two-family residence in Madison.

To request a smoke detector, call Madison Fire Department at 812-265-8350 or fill out their online form at http://madison-in.gov/FormCenter/Fire-Department-13/Smoke-Detector-Installation-Request-64 . A firefighter will schedule an appointment to inspect your home and install working fire alarms in locations best suitable to provide early warnings and save lives.

Indiana Landmarks seeks to preserve historic jail in Tipton

Indiana

TIPTON — Indiana's largest historic preservation organization is open to putting its resources behind an effort to save Tipton County's old jail and sheriff's quarters. Staff members of Indiana Landmarks attended Monday's Tipton County commissioners meeting, telling officials that they want to work with the county to find a new purpose for the old jail. The Tipton County Sheriff's Department is currently transitioning to its new $16 million facility off of Ind. 28, just west of the city. That means the old jail will largely sit vacant and could deteriorate further. A 2014 study found the jail to be in relatively good shape and estimated restoration – including masonry work, new windows and doors, and fixing the roof and drainage problems – to cost up to $1.5 million. That cost almost certainly has now increased since 2014. Demolition of the building was estimated at $500,000, but that's something both the local historical society and Indiana Landmarks wants to avoid. "We'd like to find an alternative that keeps the building a part of the community but doesn't necessarily cost Tipton County anything going forward," Mark Dollase, vice president of preservation services for Indiana Landmarks, said. Tipton County's old jail is on the National Register of Historic Places — one of only two such sites in the county. That designation makes it eligible for various grants and other financial incentives such as tax credits. "We believe it can be adaptively reused and that there's hopefully someone out there who wants to purchase the building and rehabilitate it and restore it," said Joshua Biggs, community preservation specialist at Indiana Landmarks. "We believe it (the old jail) is an integral part of Tipton's history." County Commissioner Jim Mullins said the board is open to meeting with Indiana Landmarks in a separate, special meeting sometime in the near future in which the nonprofit could go into detail on the different ways the old jail could be restored and reused. No action was taken by the board Monday.

Man gets 15 years in crash that killed 3

EVANSVILLE — A man has been sentenced to 15 years in prison after admitting that he "messed up" in a 2017 police chase crash that killed two children and a man, and seriously injured the children's pregnant mother. Frederick McFarland, 29, was sentenced Wednesday after pleading guilty in November to four counts of resisting law enforcement. Three of those charges stemmed from the deaths of a 7-month-old boy, Prince Carter; his sister, Princess Carter, 2; and Terence Barker, 26. The fourth charge arose from the serious injuries suffered by Janae Carter, who was the sole survivor of the November 2017 crash in Evansville. Police officers tried to stop McFarland because they believed he was driving a car with a false plate, but he fled and led them on a pursuit that ended when his car slammed into a car driven by Janae Carter. Sara Johnson, the grandmother of the two children who died in the crash, told the court that she and her family are still mourning their loss. Johnson said her daughter, Janae Carter, was pregnant at the time of the crash and gave birth to a girl several months later. Terence Barker, who died from his crash injuries about a month after the crash, was that child's father. Carter has also sued the city of Evansville, alleging that her injuries and her children's deaths were wrongful and resulted from the negligence of Evansville Police Department officers. Before he was sentenced Wednesday, McFarland apologized to the victims' family and asked for forgiveness, the Evansville Courier & Press reported. McFarland's attorney, Tanisha Carothers, declined to comment after the sentencing other than to say that she's glad the case is over.

Customer demanded, received white server

EVANSVILLE — Olive Garden has fired the manager of one of its restaurants who was accused of complying with a white customer's demand to replace her table's black server with one who wasn't black. An Olive Garden spokeswoman, Meagan Bernstein, said Wednesday that the company does not tolerate discrimination and decided to "separate with the manager involved" after completing its investigation of the incident last weekend at its restaurant in Evansville. Amira Donahue, a black 16-year-old host at the restaurant that night, said a woman seated with a group of customers, including two children, requested that the table's black server be replaced with a non-black one and began screaming before a manager acquiesced to her demands. "She made comments about me to my co-workers concerning my race and saying that I should work at a strip club instead," Donahue told NBC News on Wednesday. "She asked if I'm even black and if I am from here." Donahue told the Evansville Courier & Press that she and the server, who she said wasn't ready to speak to the media yet, "were both in tears for most of the day because it was just surprising." Maxwell Robbins, a customer who witnessed the incident, said it was so disturbing that he documented it in a Facebook post and submitted multiple complaints to Olive Garden by phone. Robbins, 22, said the manager complied with the customer's demand for a white server without hesitation, writing in his post that the manager's decision was "disgusting," especially considering the diverse staff at the restaurant. The Rev. Gerald Arnold, president of the Evansville NAACP chapter, said the civil rights group would investigate. The incident comes months after a group of black customers said they were asked to change tables at a Chicago-area Buffalo Wild Wings in October because because a patron didn't want to be seated near black people. That restaurant later fired two employees over that incident.

Jail officer charged with assaulting woman

VINCENNES — A correctional officer has been arrested after a female inmate he was transporting accused him of assaulting her. Malyk Jawaun Johnson, 23, of Montgomery was charged Wednesday with sexual battery, official misconduct and trafficking with an inmate, Indiana State Police said. Johnson was assigned to pick up the 37-year-old woman at the Henderson County Jail in Henderson, Kentucky, on Feb. 17 and take her to Knox County to face local charges there, police said. While en route, he allegedly stopped at a gas station and bought the woman tobacco. When the two entered Knox County, he allegedly pulled off on a rural road and assaulted the woman, police said. The woman reported the incident to her attorney, who contacted prosecutors. Johnson surrendered at the Knox County Jail before being taken to the Pike County Jail, where he was being held on bond.

Man convicted in attack gets new attorney

CROWN POINT — A has approved a new attorney for a man who wants to seek a mistrial after being convicted in a sledgehammer attack that wounded another man outside of a school. A Lake County judge ruled Wednesday that Patrick J. Ross of Hammond will be assigned a new public defender to help him pursue a motion for a mistrial. A jury had convicted Ross last month of attempted murder for the January 2018 attack. The judge encouraged Ross to consult with his new attorney and decide whether to re-file a motion for mistrial, which he had previously filed on his own. His next court date is scheduled for March 20. Ross, 41, had represented himself during much of his February trial after accusing his previous public defender of colluding with the state to secure his conviction, The (Northwest Indiana) Times reported. According to trial testimony, Ross attacked a man who had a child with Ross' ex-wife while Ross was incarcerated for breaking a beer bottle over that man's head in 2012. The attack occurred outside Scott Middle School in Hammond. Ross said in closing arguments that he didn't think he should be convicted of attempted murder because he didn't intend to kill the man. His sentencing date will not be set until the motion for mistrial issue is decided.

City OKs tax incentives for fighter jet plant

WEST LAFAYETTE — West Lafayette has approved tax incentives for Swedish manufacturer Saab's plans to build a $37 million plant where it will make fuselages for a new U.S. Air Force training jet at Purdue University's research and business district. The tax incentives approved Monday by the West Lafayette City Council came ahead of the expected start of construction this month of that plant near the Purdue Airport. The plant is expected to be ready by late 2020, the Journal & Courier reported. Saab announced plans in May 2019 to build a 112,000-square-foot plant at Purdue's Discovery Park District where it would make fuselages for the Boeing T-X — touted as the Air Force's next-generation trainer jet. Saab expects to hire 200 workers at the plant, bringing an annual payroll of $10 million to the city. "This is planting a flag in the aerospace district," said Erik Carlson, West Lafayette's development director. The approved incentives include a 100 percent abatement over the next five years on $16.5 million in real property investments and a 10-year abatement on $15 million in plant equipment and other property. The abatement will decrease by 10 percent each year over a decade. Those tax breaks would come to an estimated $2.1 million in savings for Saab over the next 10 years, based on the city's figures. Saab has also received other incentives, including an Indiana Economic Development Corp. offer of up to $3.9 million in tax credits and up to $1.15 million in training grants, conditional on Saab coming through on the promised jobs.

State testing patients for coronavirus

FRANKFORT— Kentucky is testing a handful of patients for the coronavirus, but there are no confirmed cases in the state, Gov. Andy Beshear said. Beshear said Thursday that state officials have tested seven low-risk people for the virus. Four so far were negative and three results are pending. The patients were tested "out of an abundance of caution," Beshear said. Beshear said the state's Department of Health now has the capability to test for the virus and can get results in the same day or the next day. The testing began on Monday. Dr. Steven Stack, the state's public health commissioner, said Kentucky now has the capacity to do up to 1,000 tests. Beshear said residents should continue to wash their hands and stay home from work and check with their physician if they are feeling ill. "We want people to be vigilant, but not scared," Beshear said. Kentucky's neighbor to the south, Tennessee, reported its first confirmed case of coronavirus on Thursday. The patient is an adult male who recently traveled out of state.

House passes bill for police pursuit policies

FRANKFORT — Legislation requiring law enforcement agencies to develop pursuit polices passed the House on Wednesday after an emotional tribute to a teenager whose death spurred the proposal. The measure is known "Jill's Law" in honor of Jill Hurst. She died last year after the car she was in was struck by a suspect being pursued by police in Anderson County. During House discussion of the measure, Democratic Rep. Cluster Howard, his voice choked with emotion, read excerpts of a letter written by a friend of Hurst's. The bill passed the House 84-8 and now goes to the Senate. It would require all of Kentucky's law enforcement agencies to develop a vehicle pursuit policy and submit it to the state Justice and Public Safety Cabinet. It also would set training requirements for officers before being allowed to be involved in pursuits. Republican Rep. James Tipton, the bill's lead sponsor, said it's not a criticism of law enforcement, but is meant to help protect the public and officers. "This is about what can we do to try and make a difference to help prevent these situations from happening in the future," he said. The legislation would not mandate any specific policy on pursuits, Tipton said. But the policy would need to cover such matters as initiating and discontinuing pursuits. Law enforcement agencies would have to review the policy with each of their officers. Another key component would require training. Before being allowed to be involved in a pursuit, officers would have to receive four hours of emergency vehicle operations training every other year. They would have to complete the training by Dec. 31, 2022, and every two years after that. Hurst's friend Addison McCoun testified in support of the bill at a committee hearing. She said her friend "would be here with me today" if the chase hadn't occurred, the Courier Journal reported.

Man who fatally shot girl, 2, gets 18 years

LEXINGTON — A man who pleaded guilty to fatally shooting a 2-year-old was sentenced Thursday to 18 years in prison. Marquis Thurman, 23, was one of two men who pleaded guilty in January to manslaughter and evidence tampering in the death of 2-year-old Nova Gallman. Fayette County Circuit Court Judge Julie M. Goodman sentenced Thurman to 18 years and ordered him to pay $1,800 in restitution, news outlets reported Thursday. Nova was with her mother and her mother's boyfriend on Dec. 5, 2016 when Thurman and Adrian Dunn, 23, showed up to buy marijuana. The pair demanded money from the couple, an argument broke out and gunfire erupted. Nova was shot once in the head with a stray bullet and the mother's boyfriend was shot several times. It was recommended that Thurman serve 18 years for manslaughter and five years for evidence tampering but Goodman decided to run the sentences concurrently. Goodman said she took into consideration the circumstances surrounding the shooting such as Thurman's age at the time and his lack of previous criminal history. Thurman was originally charged with murder, first-degree assault, wanton endangerment and first-degree robbery but pleaded guilty to the lesser charges. Dunn also pleaded guilty to the lesser charges in January. He's scheduled to be sentenced in April.

Leadership forum planned at UK

LEXINGTON — School districts from across the state plan to participate in the state's first STEM Leadership Forum, officials said. Leaders from 50 school districts plan to attend the event next Tuesday at the University of Kentucky in Lexington, according to a statement from the school. School administrators will hear about how science, technology, engineering and math education can drive regional economic success, the statement said. They also will share advice about creating quality programs that incorporate science, technology, engineering and math. The forum is supported by a collaborative partnership across eight Kentucky colleges and universities, the statement said.

School district removes Bible verse display

WHITESBURG — A school district has removed a Bible verse from an athletic locker room after receiving a complaint from the Freedom from Religion Foundation. The decision came after the organization sent a letter to the district stating that the message violated the Constitution, Letcher County Schools Superintendent Denise Yonts told WYMT-TV on Wednesday. Yonts said officials decided to paint over the verse after consulting with the school board attorney since it was not a student-generated display. "Our goal is to respect the law so that we can protect all of our students' religious freedoms. By doing that it allows them to express their religious rights and that's what we want," Yonts said. Freedom from Religion Foundation co-president Annie Laurie Gaylor said in a statement that she applauded the action. "Students in our public schools are free to practice any religion they choose or none at all," she said.

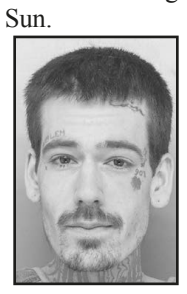
Second suspect arrested in Rising Sun shooting

Courier staff report

Indiana State Police have arrested a second man on conspiracy to commit robbery charges in connection with a shooting that took place Tuesday morning near Rising Sun.



Michael

Jesse J. Michel, 24, Cincinnati, Ohio, was arrested on a warrant out of Ohio County. Michel was located in Cincinnati by Hamilton County law enforcement late Wednesday night and incarcerated there pending extradition back to Indiana.

Police had been dispatched to an active shooter call outside of a residence on State Road 262 near Rising Sun shortly after 6 a.m. Tuesday after three men allegedly approached a 22-year-old Rising Sun man who lives at the residence and attempted to rob him.

The man who lives at the residence displayed a gun and fired at the suspects, who fled the scene.

A 20-year-old man from Ohio was soon found walking in the area and suffering from a gunshot wound to his abdomen. He was transported to a Cincinnati area hospital for treatment of serious injuries. Police have not released his identity.

Marcus Donald, 34, of Ohio, was found walking out of the area later on Tuesday and he was arrested on charges of conspiracy to commit robbery and incarcerated in the Dearborn County Jail in Lawrenceburg.

Hanover man gets 10 years for meth, habitual violator

Courier staff report

A Jefferson County man has been sentenced to 10 years in the Indiana Department of Correction on a conviction for felony possession of methamphetamine and for being a habitual felony offender.

Bartlett

Robert Bartlett, 38, 44 West Street, Lot 44, Hanover, was charged after police investigating an armed robbery from a day earlier received information that two suspects, Brian Skirvin and Joshua Pearson, were staying at Bartlett's residence and during that separate and unrelated investigation discovered drugs at the home.

Upon arriving at the home, officers found the door to be wide open and as they approached the doorway a female, Chelsea Demaree, came to the door to speak with the officers. Officers could see there were two others present in the home identified as Kaleb Skirvin and James Phillips. Officers then asked Demaree if she knew Brian and Joshua, and she stated that she did know Brian, but he was not there. The officers then asked for and were granted permission to search the home for the suspects and Demaree allowed them to do so.

As officers entered the home, they noticed a digital scale sitting in plain view with residue on it, which they recognized as methamphetamine. While searching for the suspects, the officers saw Demaree exit the back door with a green plastic container. When asked what was in the container, she told the officers it contained "baggies."

Due to the presence of suspected methamphetamine, a search warrant was applied for and issued by Jefferson County Circuit Court Judge D.J. Mote. Meanwhile, Bartlett emerged from a wooded area while officers were waiting on the warrant and identified the home to be his, which he shared with Demaree.

"Cases like these are sometimes the result of separate investigations, but the importance of finding and eradicating these drugs from our community is no less meaningful," Jefferson County Prosecutor David Sutter said after the sentencing. "While officers were investigating an armed robbery, they happened upon suspected drug dealing which ultimately resulted in this conviction and the community is safer as a result."

The police search of the property found metal pipes, a glass pipe containing burned material and a glass pipe and metal spoon containing residue. In the bedroom, Indiana State Troopers found a glass smoking pipe on a nightstand containing burned material and two white pills, identified as containing Tramadol Hydrocholorice, a controlled substance. In the plastic container being carried by Demaree, officers found three tied-up plastic bags containing a crystalline substance believed to be methamphetamine, along with numerous items of paraphernalia including pipes, burned material, plastic bags with the corners cut off, corner pieces of plastic bags containing residue, a metal grinder, cut plastic straws and a metal file.

Bartlett pleaded guilty to one count of possession of methamphetamine, a Level 5 felony, and was also found to be a Habitual Felony Offender due to multiple prior convictions on unrelated felonies. He was sentenced by Mote to a term of 10 years to be fully served in the Indiana Department of Correction. He will be eligible to participate in the Recovery While Incarcerated program while serving his sentence.

"Law enforcement officers willingly take risks upon investigating any crime without knowing what they may find or how safe they may be. I want to offer my sincere appreciation for the Indiana State Police and the Madison Police Department on their joint efforts in this case and every case as they continually work to improve public safety in Jefferson County," said Sutter.

Skirvin and Pearson were convicted in separate court proceedings on charges of robbery, a Level 5 felony.

3 injured in U.S. 421 crash in Trimble

By MARK CAMPBELL
Courier staff writer

A two-car crash at U.S. 421 and Palmyra Road in Trimble County, Kentucky, sent three people to area hospitals on Wednesday.

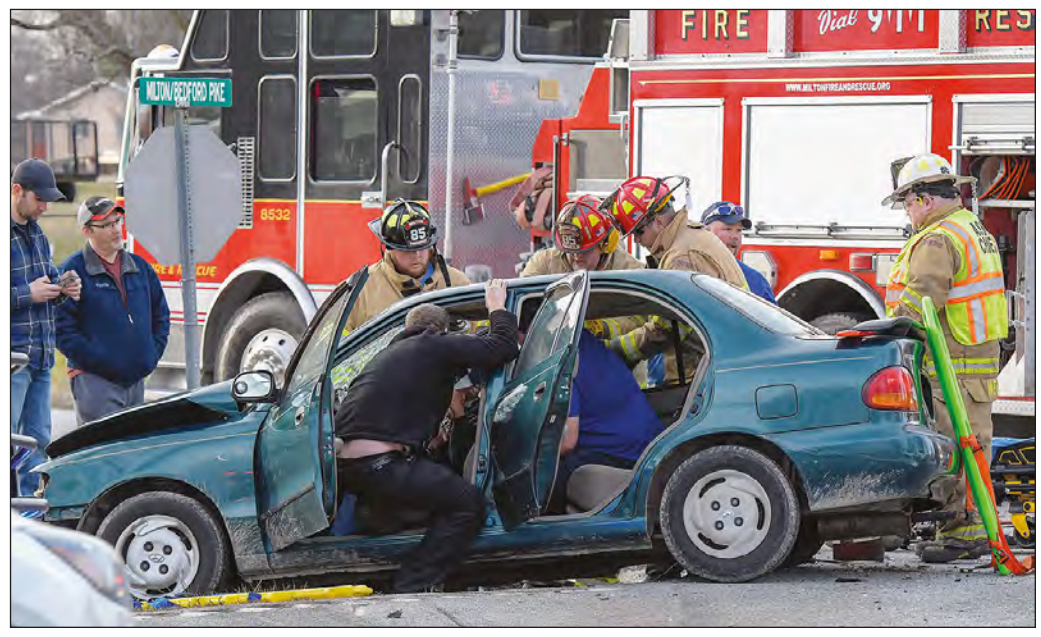
The accident took place shortly after 5 p.m. when a white Nissan driven by Sandra May, 78, of Carrollton collided with a green Hyundai driven by Kristin Hall, 28, of Bedford, at the U.S. 421 Palmyra Road crossroads between Bedford and Milton.

Trimble County Deputy Sheriff Jim Mitchell was dispatched to the scene at about 5:12 p.m. and found two heavily damaged vehicles and three injured occupants including Hall and her 15-year-old daughter, who were still trapped inside their Hyundai.

Mitchell said May was on Palmyra Road preparing to turn south on U.S. 421 toward Bedford while Hall, who lives very near the site, was traveling north on U.S. 421 toward Milton. He said May did not see the Hyundai coming over a hill toward the intersection and pulled out onto U.S. 421 with the cars impacting. The collision spun the Hyundai around in the road and off the opposite side of the roadway while the force carried the Nissan several feet north before it came to final rest.

May complained of arm pain and was transported to King's Daughters' Hospital in Madison while Hall sustained a broken femur and was flown to University of Louisville Hospital by the AirFlight helicopter. Hall's teenage daughter was transported to KDH complaining of chest pain.

Milton Fire & Rescue responded to the scene and worked for several minutes to extricate Hall and her daughter from the car. Mitchell said Hall was not wearing a seat belt and ended up on the passenger side of the vehicle, which was where the brunt of the impact took place.



Milton Fire & Rescue personnel work to free Kristin Hall and her 15-year-old daughter from the wreckage of their Hyundai Wednesday (above) after they were involved in a two-car crash at U.S. 421 and Palmyra Road between Bedford and Milton. Kristin Hall sustained a broken femur and was flown to University of Louisville Hospital by the AirFlight helicopter (below). Hall's daughter and the driver of the other car, Sandra May of Carrollton, sustained less severe injuries and were transported to King's Daughters' Hospital by ground ambulance. Milton Fire Chief Jason Long (right) directs personnel. (Courier staff photos by Mark Campbell)

The 5 p.m. crash time came at one of the busiest times daily on U.S. 421, backing up traffic at the site with a lot of other vehicles opting to detour entirely. Mitchell said the road was blocked for well over an hour before the injured were transported, vehicles recovered and roadway cleared of debris.

No charges have been filed in the crash and the investigation is ongoing, said Mitchell.

Boyfriend charged with neglect of dependents

Courier staff report

Madison Police responded to a report that three children had been abandoned at a local hotel arrested a Madison man Thursday for neglect of a dependent and drug charges.

Pruitt

Capt. D.J. Stephan and Patrolman Cameron Blankenship were responding to a call at the Best Way Inn, 700 Clifty Drive, at 7:30 a.m. Thursday when they found three children under the age of 5 years old who had been left alone in a hotel room for approximately seven hours.

Based on their investigation, Auktavian Pruitt, 30, of Madison — the boyfriend of the mother of the children — had been left in charge of the children while the mother worked. Pruitt was taken into custody without incident at approximately 9 a.m. and transported to the Jefferson County jail where he faces three preliminary charges of neglect of a dependent, a Level 6 felony. During the booking process at the Jefferson County Jail, Pruitt was found to be in possession of methamphetamine, and will face an additional Level 6 felony for possession.

The case is still under investigation by Madison Police Department.

Warsaw man charged after pursuit, crash

Courier staff report

A Kentucky man has been charged with felony resisting arrest, driving while suspended and reckless driving after leading authorities in Switzerland County on a vehicle chase Thursday that ended with him wrecking his car on Elam Road.

Castle

Stephen E. Castle, Warsaw, was charged with resisting law enforcement with a vehicle, a Level 6 felony; driving while suspended, a Class A misdemeanor;' and reckless driving, a Class B misdemeanor.

The pursuit began at approximately 6 a.m. when a Switzerland County Deputy initiated a traffic stop near the intersection of Markland Pike and Stowtown Road. Before the deputy could make contact, the driver speeded away, leading to a pursuit. The chase continued along Stowtown Road, through the intersection of S.R. 56, and onto Elam Road before the driver lost control of the vehicle and crashed while attempting to negotiate a curve.

Switzerland County Emergency responded to the scene and transported the driver Castle to King's Daughters' Hospital in Madison for treatment of minor injuries. East Enterprise Fire Department also assisted at the scene.

After being released from medical care, Castle was placed under arrest and lodged in the Switzerland County Jail. He appeared for an initial hearing on Friday and is being held on a $2,000 cash bond.

Dupont man facing felonies in shooting

By COLLIN OVERTON
Courier staff writer

A Dupont man accused of firing four shots at a fleeing vehicle Tuesday night appeared for his initial hearing in Jefferson County Circuit Court Friday afternoon to face four felony charges.

Robert Allen Walter High Wells, 27, Dupont, faces charges of attempted aggravated battery, a Level 3 felony; attempted battery with a deadly weapon, a Level 5 felony; criminal recklessness, a Level 6 felony; and domestic battery, a Level 6 felony, and is scheduled for a pretrial hearing in May.

Due to the nature of the crimes and Wells' criminal history — Jefferson County Prosecutor David Sutter said Wells has failed to appear in court at least three times in Kentucky and was currently on probation in Indiana for the same reason — Magistrate Nancy Jacobs ordered Wells held on a $100,000 cash bond and signed a no-contact order preventing Wells from having any contact with two victims in the case.

Wells is accused of engaging in an argument with his ex-girlfriend, Miranda Lauderbaugh, and her boyfriend, Justin Ledbetter, that led to shots being fired including three bullets that impacted the passenger side of Ledbetter's pickup truck.

According to an affidavit prepared by Jefferson County Sheriff Deputy Ben Flint, Wells admitted to Flint and Chief Deputy Josh Taylor that he had gotten into a confrontation with Ledbetter the night of March 3 in Dupont over his ex-girlfriend, Lauderbaugh, who was now dating Ledbetter.

Lauderbaugh told officers the fight started as a verbal argument but escalated. She said she told Wells not to fight Ledbetter and Wells allegedly responded that he wouldn't fight him, but "shoot him."

Lauderbaugh told police Ledbetter then got in his truck, a black Chevrolet S-10, and as he was pulling away onto Main Street in Dupont, Wells pulled a .22 caliber handgun from his clothing and fired several shots. She said she did not see the shots, as she ran inside her home to get Wells' 6-year-old daughter, but an investigation later recovered evidence of three bullet impact points on the passenger side of Ledbetter's truck as well as four bullet casings on the ground where the shooting took place in the 6600 block of W. Main Street in Dupont, the affidavit said.

Lauderbaugh also told police Wells had assaulted her a few days before. She said she had gone with her husband, Anthony Lauderbaugh — who she said she no longer lives with or is in a relationship with — in his truck to get money and cigarettes. When she returned home, Wells confronted her for being with Anthony Lauderbaugh and threatened to punch her. Lauderbaugh said "OK," at which point Wells punched her in the face and punched a makeup mirror she was holding, causing glass to shatter and cause lacerations to her face. Miranda Lauderbaugh's face still showed signs of cuts and bruising to her eye at the time of her interview by police, according to the affidavit.

When police interviewed Robert Wells he alleged admitted firing the shots and that he had later road a bicycle to a railroad bridge between Middle Fork Road and John

Robert Wells

Deere Road where he threw a .22 caliber handgun into a creek below a railroad bridge. However, he said he could not provide exact times or dates since he was "under the influence of methamphetamine when the event transpired."

Police issued a warrant for Wells' arrest on Thursday and he was later arrested by Indiana State Police.

Syringe service program bill heads to Governor

By APRILE RICKERT
(Jeffersonville & New Albany) News and Tribune

INDIANAPOLIS — An amended bill which will extend syringe service programs in Indiana for another year has passed the House and is heading to the governor's desk.

House Bill 1182, authored by Rep. Ed Clere R-New Albany, passed its second run in the House on Thursday on a 78-7 vote, after a strong Senate vote earlier this week.

The bill, which first passed the House in early January, originally was aimed at updating language related to HIV and supporting county-level overdose and fatality review committees. But after a Senate bill, which would have repealed the sunset on the programs failed, Clere amended it into his House bill, along with a section which outlines protocol for if a healthcare worker gets a needle stick.

Since it had been amended, the bill had to go back to the House for a concurrence vote.

There are currently nine syringe service programs in the state, including Clark County's, which opened in early 2017. The programs were started to provide a place for intravenous drug users to exchange used needles for clean ones, provide access to healthcare such as free HIV testing and be a connection to recovery resources.

• Buffer zone

The second was to improve education on the roles of the city and county by having legal counsel draft them and publish them on both entity's websites, along with an FAQ and contact information.

They also recommended Jefferson County extract the nuisance provisions from its own zoning ordinance and enforce them as a separate ordinance. Little said this "gave the county teeth" in enforcing rules on noise, abandoned vehicles, unsafe buildings, curb view and recreational use permits, which had become a concern throughout meetings the past year.

Other concerns from residents in the zone boiled down to "voice, representation and enforcement," he said.

Scott Baldwin, a member of the city zoning board who lives in the buffer zone, expressed a need for updated zoning regulations and concern for residential agriculture areas — especially after residents had complained of noise from the White Barn Venue on Thompson Hill Road since its establishment in 2017.

"It's high time that we think about our modern issues that come up, especially on things that would be so disruptive, like a wedding venue, with parties and bands and music and noise," Baldwin said during public comment.

The fourth recommendation was to amend city code to ensure a resident from the buffer zone always sat on the city's zoning appeals board. Courtney guaranteed that of his three upcoming appointments, one would be from the zone. One other county representative already sits on that board, while two members of the city plan commission are also from the county per a city ordinance, Courtney reminded visitors.

The fifth and final recommendation was to modify the area's geographic information system (GIS) overlay so property owners can determine if their land is inside or outside the zone.

Other concerns form Wednesday night and past meetings had been related to which law enforcement agency and governing body had jurisdiction over the zone.

Auxier said the Jefferson County Sheriff's Office had told him through talks that they had always responded and would continue responding to the area.

"There may be some confusion on the dispatch and so forth, but the sheriff's department assures me that it is their responsibility to respond to the buffer zone," Auxier said.

Courtney reminded one citizen that on everything expect land use, Jefferson County had jurisdiction over the zone.

"It's often very, very misunderstood that everything that involves the buffer zone is now regulated by the city of Madison when in fact, the authority that's been delegated by Jefferson County has been land use, and that means we get to enforce our zoning ordinance in that two-mile jurisictional area. But everything else is still a Jefferson County responsibility," Courtney said.

• Coronavirus

Anyone showing symptoms that could be related to the coronavirus — fever, low level cough or shortness of breath — is isolated," Chapman said.

Unlike Type A and Type B flu, Chapman noted that KDH is not testing for COVID-19 because test kits have not yet been made available to individual hospitals, but the tests could be available in a couple of weeks depending on the spread of coronavirus and availability of kits.

"If we had a patient that needed to be tested we'd have to call and get approval," Chapman said, noting that for now all testing for Indiana is done by the Center For Disease Control, which takes about 48 hours, or the state, which has some test kits and that takes 12 to 24 hours.

The closest state to Indiana with multiple cases is Illinois with five, but what was once restricted to the West Coast, East Coast, Florida and Illinois has now shown up in 23 states. As of Friday afternoon, Kentucky and Ohio were so far clean of COVID-19.

Local business and industries are also making plans or taking action to deal with the coronavirus threat — especially those who do business with companies located in the areas of outbreak — and with lost production from factories they deal with that have been shut down by COVID-19.

Local manufacturers are already seeing some impact on their supply chains but nothing to severe to date.

Arvin Sango Vice President of Operations Scott Hubbard said one supplier in China has been shut down for the past month, but due to lead time with their overseas network, there's no immediate threat of a work stoppage locally. The company has since switched to another supplier in the country for now, he said.

"The concern would be if it went on for another month or so — then that might change some things," Hubbard said.

The bigger concern would be the effect on original equipment manufacturers who order from Arvin Sango, he said. If the shutdown continues on into April, it could impact their supply lines which could then affect what those companies order from Arvin Sango.

"That would be our concern, but we're still several weeks out from anything there, and there's not any indication from any of them that they have a problem on the horizon," Hubbard said.

SuperATV saw it facility in Nantong, China, shut down for three to four weeks, but employees there are now back to work, Director of Human Resources Chuck Sage said. He said most SuperATV suppliers in China are back on the job.

"We've had some products that maybe we were a little low on, but all those are on their way over now, so we're pretty much unscathed," he said, noting the company's model for same-day shipping has been helpful in keeping inventory on hand.

"If somebody orders something from us, we ship it same day, so we have to carry a little extra inventory, so that helps us in a situation like this. But a company who does not keep much inventory on hand, I could see that being a bigger issue," Sage said.

SuperATV has a four-phase plan that follows Centers for Disease Control Guidelines in case the virus does reach Madison and affects its workforce. Sage said management is always reminding employees to wash their hands, cover their mouth when sneezing or coughing and be cognizant of where they travel.

Royer Corporation, a manufacturer of stirring sticks, coasters and other plastic products, reported some of the same problems due to suppliers and servicing industries that have been hit hard financially by the outbreak.

Royer supplies several companies in the tourism and travel industries, like Southwest Airlines, Holland America Line and Hawaiian Airlines. Global airlines could soon lose as much as $113 billion if the virus continues to spread, the International Air Transport Association reported this week. On Thursday, in the face of plummeting numbers, Carnival Cruise Line announced it would offer passengers up to $200 worth of extra credit if they keep their bookings through May 31.

"It definitely has made it more difficult," Royer General Manager Kenton Williams said in an email Tuesday. "We have strategic partners for several of our product lines overseas and there has been somewhat of a slowdown with those locations. We have also seen a slowdown with some of our overseas suppliers but luckily we have a diverse supply base ... Overall we have been able to mitigate any losses and in some cases we have seen an up-tick in sales as we have the ability to serve our customers here domestically with high capacity and speed to market."

Sexual assault advocates push for change in Indiana

By WHITNEY DOWNARD
CNHI Statehouse Reporter

INDIANAPOLIS — The failure, for the second year in a row, to define consent for sexual activity under Indiana code doesn't deter state Rep. Sue Errington, D-Muncie, but rather strengthens her conviction to reintroduce the bill again.

"This is too important to let it die there; it's too important to give up," Errington said at a statehouse rally Thursday. "There is an evolution going on in this country of understanding what consent is and why it's important."

Advocates with Women-4Change Indiana, an organization dedicated to issues impacting women, collected notecards from 1,500 sexual assault survivors across all 92 counties and displayed them Thursday on clotheslines across the statehouse.

The project, called El Tendedero or The Clothesline, started as an art display by Monica Mayer in Mexico City to bring attention to sexual assault. Mayer is a leader in the U.S. feminist art movement.

The rally Thursday drew attention to the lack of a definition of consent in Indiana state law. Without such a definition, rape can be prosecuted only when there is evidence of force, threats of force or bodily injury.

"Rape is really the only crime in which the victim is scrutinized more than the rapist," Tracey Horth Krueger said. "Why are we not asking, 'Why in the world would you ever think it's OK to rape?'"

The perpetrators of sexual assault are likely to know the victim, either as a family member or friend, and victims might fear being blamed or not believed when they report the assault, according to Horth Krueger, CEO of the Indiana Coalition to End Sexual Assault and Human Trafficking.

Statistics from Women-4Change and the Indiana Coalition indicate one in five Hoosier women are sexually assaulted within their lifetime, with 85 percent going unreported. Indiana also had the fourth-highest number of high school rapes in the country.

"The numbers are overwhelming. … It's very easy to feel paralyzed about not knowing what to do. But that cannot be our excuse," Horth-Krueger said. "Those numbers are awful, but they become our energy, our focus, our fuel to launch us into action."

HB 1160 (http://iga.in.gov/legislative/2020/bills/house/1160) didn't get a committee hearing this year, but several lawmakers signed letters to General Assembly leadership to create an interim study committee on sexual assault and the role of consent in the prosecution process.

Errington said formation of the committee must receive approval from three of the four General Assembly leaders: House Speaker-Elect Todd Huston, R-Fishers; House Minority Leader Phil GiaQuinta, D-Fort Wayne; Senate President Pro Tem Rodric Bray, R-Martinsville, and Senate Minority Leader Tim Lanane, D-Anderson.

Another bill defining sexual battery, HB 1161 (http://iga.in.gov/legislative/2020/bills/house/1161), also didn't move forward.

However, a bill defining the rights of sexual assault survivors did advance, guaranteeing survivors a victim advocate or victim service provider during a forensic medical examination and investigation.

The Coalition said they want to use the 2021 budget session to focus on another issue in addition to defining consent: increasing the line item for the Sexual Assault Victims Fund.

"I think that if this consent (law) does one day go through, it's going to be a huge game changer," said Kristen Pulice, COO of the Indiana Coalition.

Bolstering the Sexual Assault Victims Assistance Fund could impact funding for rape crisis centers, increase the number of community Sexual Assault Response Teams, provide training for law enforcement or prosecutors and increase the number of sexual assault nurse examiners.

In 2015, the state had three rape crisis centers covering 10 counties. Now 12 centers cover 44 counties.

"Once this bill with the summer study commission, if that happens … then we'll have a lot of momentum," Pulice said. "These are the needs we have, here's why we need this funding and here's what we need in this legislation."

Kentucky House passes its version of 2-year state budget

By BRUCE SCHREINER
Associated Press

FRANKFORT, Ky. — The Kentucky House overwhelmingly passed its version of a new two-year state budget Friday, but some lawmakers said the unwillingness to tap into more revenue sources would shortchange many of the state's pressing funding needs.

The GOP-crafted spending plan drew bipartisan support in clearing the House 86-10. The measure now goes to the Republican-dominated Senate, which will put its imprint on the budget. The differences will likely be ironed out by legislative leaders in a conference committee.

The House version changed Democratic Gov. Andy Beshear's proposed pay raise for teachers to spread it to other school employees. It boosted school-security funding to hire hundreds of counselors. The House plan also scaled back Beshear's proposal to add more social workers but offered salary enhancements to hire and retain more of them working in child protective services.

"I believe while not perfect, this is a good step in the process," House budget committee Chairman Steven Rudy said. "It will not be the finished document. But I believe that this balanced budget is very responsible and it will help to move the state forward."

The top-ranking House Democrat, Rep. Joni Jenkins, said "there's lot of common ground" on the spending plan, but said lawmakers should consider more revenue so the state can "move forward more quickly in education and social services."

The only new revenue source to help support the House spending plan would come from new taxes on vaping and tobacco productions, which would raise nearly $50 million over two years.

Democratic Rep. Kelly Flood also urged lawmakers to consider new revenue sources to help meet more of the state's funding needs. She identified sports betting as one untapped source. A bill to legalize sports wagering has been stalled in the House. It would generate an estimated $22 million to $25 million in yearly revenue, its supporters have said.

As is customary, the House's budget plan made changes to the two-year spending blueprint submitted by the governor in January.

Beshear proposed a $2,000 across-the-board pay raise for teachers, fulfilling a key campaign pledge from last year. It would amount to a 3.7% raise for the average teacher making $53,923 in 2019. The governor says the salary boost is needed to overcome a shortage of teachers.

The House GOP version would provide a 1% pay increase in each year of the biennium for teachers but spread it to other school employees. including office staff, cafeteria workers and bus drivers.

All state employees also would be in line for 1% pay raises in each year of the biennium under the House GOP plan, with a few exceptions.

The House version goes beyond the governor's proposal for school-safety funding. The House plan would provide nearly $49 million over two years to hire an additional 400 school counselors.

House Republicans set aside funding to hire 100 additional social workers in child protective services over the two-year period. Beshear proposed adding 350 social workers to reduce caseloads and to combat the state's high rates of child abuse and neglect. House Republicans also proposed offering 5% pay raises as an incentive as the state struggles to hire and retain more social workers in child protective services

Local tax options shot down

By BRUCE SCHREINER
Associated Press

FRANKFORT, Ky. — A proposed constitutional change to give local governments more latitude to raise tax revenue was defeated by the Kentucky House on Friday, but the measure could still be revived.

The legislation fell 11 votes short of the 60-vote threshold needed for passage. Slightly more than one-third of the House members — mostly Democrats — didn't cast votes on the proposal. Their abstentions sparked heated discussions between some Republican and Democratic members.

House Speaker David Osborne, a cosponsor of the measure, later told reporters that the constitutional amendment could potentially come up again later in the GOP-led House.

The measure, if added to Kentucky's Constitution, would ease tight restrictions on the types of taxes that city and county governments can levy to meet their obligations.

Supporters include groups representing city and county governments. Current restrictions force local governments to rely heavily on property taxes and taxes levied on wages and business income, they say. Opponents include the Kentucky Retail Federation, which warns the constitutional change could lead to new sales taxes that it says would hurt consumers and retailers.

If voters ratified the constitutional change, the legislature could follow up by considering a new taxing framework giving local governments more flexibility in deciding which taxes to assess.

Holcomb backs forcing out AG

By TOM DAVIES
Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Indiana's governor is endorsing a proposal that could force the state's attorney general from office if his law license is suspended over allegations that he drunkenly groped a state legislator and three other women.

Republican Gov. Eric Holcomb said in a statement Thursday that he supports a bill endorsed by the Indiana House that would prohibit anyone whose law license has been suspended for at least 30 days from serving as attorney general.

That action came as Republican Attorney General Curtis Hill awaits a decision from the state Supreme Court on whether he'll face any punishment for the alleged professional misconduct. Former state Supreme Court Justice Myra Selby, who heard four days of testimony about the allegations in October, last month recommended that Hill's law license be suspended for at least 60 days, writing that his "conduct was offensive, invasive, damaging and embarrassing" to the women.

State law requires the attorney general to be "duly licensed to practice law in Indiana" but doesn't specify whether the person can continue serving after facing professional disciplinary action.

"Clarity and certainty are always good," Holcomb's statement said. "The House has provided both for anyone who holds the office of attorney general. I would support and sign the bill if it came to my desk."

Hill, who is seeking reelection this year, has denied wrongdoing and resisted calls for his resignation from Holcomb and other state Republican leaders. A special prosecutor declined to pursue criminal charges against Hill and a federal judge on Monday dismissed a lawsuit filed by the women alleging sexual harassment and defamation by Hill. The judge ruled that the women didn't establish that Hill violated federal law.

Hill is accused of grabbing Democratic Rep. Mara Candelaria Reardon's buttocks and inappropriately touching and making unwelcome sexual comments toward three female legislative staffers during a party in March 2018.

The Republican-dominated House voted 83-9 Monday in favor of the attorney general removal provision. The bill is pending with the state Senate, which must approve it by next week's end of the legislative session for it to become law.

The attorney general's office said the provision "raises some legal concerns — and this kind of rushed proposal lacks transparency and leaves no opportunity for public input."

Rosalie Evans

Rosalie Jones Evans, 81, of Madison, Indiana, died Tuesday, March 3, 2020, at Our Hospice of South Central Indiana in Columbus, Indiana.

She was born Oct. 17, 1938, in Madison to Howard L. and Clarabel Smoot Jones. She lived all of her life in Jefferson County and was a 1956 graduate of Madison High School. She then graduated from the Louisville Baptist School of Nursing, receiving her Registered Nurses License. She served as an RN for 50 years, having worked for King's Daughters' Hospital and as a home health nurse for the Jefferson County Health Department. She last worked as a case manager for the WIC program through the Jefferson County Health Department. She was raised in the First Baptist Church in downtown Madison but was currently a member of the Wirt Baptist Church. She enjoyed sewing, knitting, genealogy, helping others and being with her children and grandchildren.

She was married to Donald Eugene Elles for 33 years beginning on May 10, 1959 and they had two sons and a daughter. She later married John Thomas "J.T." Evans on Oct. 21, 2004.

Survivors include her husband, J.T. Peggy Hans

Elizabeth Louise Peggy McMurray Becker Hans, 75, died Thursday, March 5, 2020, at King's Daughters' Hospital in Madison.

She was born Feb. 20, 1945, in Paris, Texas, where her father was serving as a lieutenant in the Army. As a child, she lived in Buffalo, New York, Trenton, New Jersey, and Flint, Michigan. She was a graduate of the University of Michigan but during her many years in Madison, she developed equally strong affection for UK, U of L and IU.

She moved from Michigan to Carrollton, Kentucky, in 1972, where she was editor of the Carrollton News-Democrat until 1985, earning numerous awards from the Kentucky Press Association. She developed photography skills and traveled the area searching for interesting subjects including kids, adults, dancers, horses, floods, celebrities, governors, former First Lady Rosalynn Carter and other visitors. One of her proudest accomplishments, through her advocacy at the newspaper, led to establishment of a library tax making it possible for a funded library in Carroll County.

She then worked for River Valley Resources in Madison for 23 years, first in the field office, then the WorkOne Center, and finally in RVR Administration as Director of Marketing, trainer, and grant writer. She conducted numerous training events in high schools all over southeastern Indiana, highlighting non-traditional employment opportunities. She was invited to present in Washington, DC and elsewhere at national conferences.

She married Bill Hans on Oct. 25, 1981, at Christ Episcopal Church and moved to Madison in 1982, living on the hilltop and later moving downtown. She would host an annual party for Chautauqua where margaritas and laughter flowed. Her house was filled with books and music plus a menagerie of cats underfoot. She loved her husband, the Lord, and music, bringing all of them together by playing the organ at seemingly every church in Madison at one time or another. She was a long-time parishioner at Christ Episcopal Church, where she served on the Vestry for many years.

She suffered medical reverses later in life but was supported by the love and friendship of too many people to count. Her family is immensely thankful for the support she received from all her friends.

Survivors include a son, Ted Becker of East Lansing, Michigan; a daughter, Christie Gower of Howell, Michigan; a brother, Louis Robert McMurray of Monroe, Michigan; and five grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by her parents and her husband on June 3, 2014.

Funeral services will be at 11 a.m. on Tuesday, March 10, at Christ Episcopal Church in Madison, with interment to follow in Springdale Cemetery in Madison. Friends may call from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. Monday, March 9, at St. John's United Church of Christ in Madison.

Memorial contributions may be made to Christ Episcopal Church, the Madison-Jefferson County Public Library, or the Pulmonary Hypertension Association. Cards will be available at each church.

In Loving Memory

Peggy Hans

February 20, 1945 ~ March 5, 2020

Elizabeth Louise (Peggy) McMurray Becker Hans, age 75, died Thursday, March 5, 2020, at the King's Daughters' Hospital in Madison, Indiana, surrounded by family and friends and the faint but unmistakable sounds of a heavenly choir.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Bill Hans, who died on June 3, 2014; mother, Helen Mae Kreis McMurray; father, Robert Lewis McMurray; grandfather, Louis A. Kreis; grandmother, Lillian Doersam Kreis; and grandmother, Martha Weber McMurray.

She is survived by her brother Louis Robert (Robin) McMurray, Monroe MI; son Ted Becker (Barbara), East Lansing, MI; daughter Christie Gower (Scott), Howell MI; and five beloved grandchildren: Garrett Gower, Hayden Gower, Lexa Becker, Stephanie Becker, and Valerie Elizabeth Becker (whose middle name is no coincidence).

Peggy was born February 20, 1945 in Paris, Texas where her father was serving as a lieutenant in the Army. As a child, she lived in Buffalo, NY, Trenton, NJ, and Flint, MI. She was a proud graduate of the University of Michigan (Go Blue!), but during her many years in Madison, she covered all her bases by developing equally strong affection for UK, U of L, and IU.

Peggy moved from Michigan to Carrollton, Kentucky in 1972, where she was a long-time editor of the Carrollton News-Democrat, a position she held until 1985. As editor, Peggy earned numerous awards from the Kentucky Press Association. She acquired photography skills and traveled the area with her Nikon searching for interesting subjects: kids, adults, dancers, horses, floods, celebrities, governors, Rosalynn Carter, and other visitors. (Those who know her well know that she was never one to let a photo opportunity go to waste, to the occasional exasperation of her friends and family!) One of her proudest accomplishments, through her advocacy at the News Democrat, led to establishment of a library tax, making it possible for a funded library in Carroll County.

Peggy then worked for River Valley Resources in Madison for 23 years, first in the field office, then the WorkOne Center, and finally in RVR Administration as Director of Marketing, trainer and grant writer. She conducted numerous training events in high schools all over southeastern Indiana, highlighting non-traditional employment opportunities. She was invited to present in Washington, DC and elsewhere at national conferences.

On June 17, 1981, after a Wednesday night service at Christ Episcopal Church, Bill asked Peggy to marry him. He always reminded her that for almost an hour, she said absolutely nothing (an extraordinarily rare occurrence). They celebrated this occasion throughout their marriage, which occurred on October 25, 1981, at Christ Episcopal Church. She moved to Madison in 1982 and they lived on the hilltop after their marriage, later moving downtown, where they hosted an annual party for Chautauqua where margaritas and laughter flowed. Their house was filled with (probably too many) books and (definitely never enough) music plus a menagerie of cats underfoot.

She loved Bill, the Lord, and music with all her heart, bringing all of them together by playing the organ at seemingly every church in Madison at one time or another. She was a long-time parishioner at Christ Episcopal Church, where she served on the Vestry for many years.

Peggy suffered medical reverses later in life but was supported by the love and friendship of too many people to count. Her family is immensely thankful for the support she received from all her friends. She frequently told her family that it was a wonderful thing to live in a small town where people look out for each other. She was right. Requiescat in pace, Mom.

The Reverend Evelyn Wheeler will conduct funeral services at 11:00 a.m. Tuesday, March 10, 2020 at Christ Episcopal Church, corner of Third and Mulberry Streets in Madison, with interment to follow in Springdale Cemetery.

Friends may call from 5:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. Monday, March 9, 2020 at St. John's United Church of Christ, East Main Street, Madison.

The family requests memorial contributions be made to Christ Episcopal Church, the Madison-Jefferson County Public Library, or the Pulmonary Hypertension Association. Cards will be available at each church.

Stewart-Hoagland Funeral Home, Scottsburg, Indiana is in charge of the arrangements.

12-28-73 — 3-8-19

It's been a year since you left us and our hearts are still in pieces. A loving son, brother, uncle, friend, and most of all, Daddy - gone from our lives far too soon. Remembering you is easy, we do it everyday. Missing you is the heartache that never goes away. We know that you are watching over us, we carry you in our hearts. We look to God for comfort when the pain just seems too hard. We love and miss you dearly, Harry "Rick" Rickey Cull, Jr.

Psalms 147:3
"He heals the brokenhearted and binds their wounds."

Sadly missed by his loving daughter Addison, Dad, Mom, brother, sister and nephews, nieces, aunts, uncles and many friends

GIRLS SWIMMER OF THE YEAR

Swimming comes naturally for Southwestern's Crawford

Southwestern junior Belle Crawford is the Madison Courier Girls Swimmer of the Year.

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Courier Staff Writer
dcampbell@madisoncourier.com

For as long as she could remember, Belle Crawford has been in a pool. And not just splashing around on a warm summer day, but in the deep end, working on her strokes and perfecting what would someday be her craft.

"We would be practicing and she would be a baby, sitting in a little seat floating around and into the deep end," longtime Southwestern coach Shelly Anderson said with a laugh. "People would say, should we go get her? And we were like, 'she's fine.'"

Belle proved to be more than fine. Growing up in a swimming family, it was almost like she had chlorine in her blood and once she had a chance to compete at the high school level, she took off to heights even she didn't expect.

The Southwestern High School junior set a new school record this year and reached the sectional finals in three different events to become this year's Madison Courier Girls Swimmer of the Year.

For Belle, it was a season beyond her wildest dreams but she already has plans to exceed it next year.

"My goal next year is to make state in the 100 fly," Belle said. "I can't even describe how awesome that would be."

Belle's father Jay Crawford was a standout swimmer at Southwestern whose name is all over the school's record board. He returned to the school as a coach and later as head coach, and little Belle came along for the ride.

"She's been in the pool literally since she could walk," Jay Crawford said. "It's something that has come naturally for her and it's fun to see both sides, both as a coach and as a parent."

"As long as I can remember, I've been in here. After school every day for however many months it is. A long time," Belle said. "It's just so familiar to me. It's home. I'm just so used to doing it all the time. Almost everything I do is related to it, especially this time of year. Even in summertime with club swimming. I think it's what kind of glues our family together too."

"The thing about Belle is, she listens. She looks at you and she focuses on what you're saying. She takes it in and then she produces it. It's little things that she can pick up on and capitalize on and this year she was laser-focused."
— Southwestern coach Shelly Anderson

As she got older, Belle began competing and she began winning. Fusing her love of swimming with the desire to get better, she saw her times drop and drop nearly every time out.

But nothing prepared Belle or her coaches for her junior season. Determined to break the school record in the 100-yard butterfly, she did that and more, eventually snagging the No. 2 seed after the preliminary round of the IHSAA Sectional at Floyd Central.

"The thing about Belle is, she listens. She looks at you and she focuses on what you're saying. She takes it in and then she produces it," Anderson said. "It's little things that she can pick up on and

Hanover's Nall named Jostens Trophy finalist

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Hanover College's women's basketball player Alexis Nall has been named a Top 10 Finalist for the Jostens Trophy by the Rotary Club of Salem, Virginia.

The Jostens Trophy is awarded annually in March to honor the NCAA Division III Men's and Women's Outstanding Athletes of the year. The trophy is designed and sponsored by the Jostens and the Rotary Club of Salem, Virginia. The award was created to honor the well-rounded Division III student-athlete who excels in the classroom, on the playing court and in their community.

This season marks the 23rd edition of the award, with the first trophy being awarded in 1998. Nall, a senior from Mount Vernon, becomes the first Hanover women's basketball player to be named as a finalist and the third in Hanover history joining men's basketball players Wes McKinney (2018) and Cam Fails (2019). The 2020 award winners will be announced in mid-March.

Nall was most recently named the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference Most Valuable Player for a second-straight year. She was pegged a preseason All-American for the second consecutive year and became the first women's basketball player in the HCAC to receive an honor higher than third team. She raked in awards all season long, including six HCAC Player of the Week honors,

H2O set for Spring Divisional

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

The Hoosier Hills Otters Swim Team will be competing in the Indiana Swimming Spring South East Divisional Championships at Franklin High School this weekend.

Swimmers had this week to qualify for the event with those qualifying for the state finals not eligible. Swimmers must scratch down to six events for the entire meet plus relays with no more than three individual events per day. The meet will be run in Modified Championship Meet Format with preliminaries, consolation finals and finals for the 12 & U and 14 & U and Open age groups.

"With the successes of our local high school programs this season, we now turn our attention to the foundation of those programs, the club team," said H2O head coach John Schutte. "H2O continues to grow as one of the premier programs in Southeastern Indiana. H2O has always had a strong showing at the Divisional and State Championship swim meet and this season will be no exception. We are proud of all our athletes who are committed to swimming and improving their skills throughout the year."

Qualifying Swimmers are:

15 & Over Boys — Carter Schutte, 50 free, 100 free and 100 back; Liam Roney, 100 yard fly, 50 free, 100 free and 200 free; Trenton Schmidt, 200 IM, 100 fly, 50 free and 100 free; Justin Banks, 400 IM, 200 IM, 100

Spalding rallies late to beat Hanover

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Spalding (Ky.) pushed across single runs in the seventh and eighth innings to spoil Hanover's home opener and post a 5-4 win in baseball Wednesday on campus.

The Panthers found themselves trailing 3-1 but erupted for three runs in the bottom of the fifth to seize the lead. Jake Schaefer started the rally by getting hit by a pitch and Jacob Dupps followed with a single.

After Zeke Porta was hit by a pitch to load the bases with one out, Andrew Littlefield singled in Schaefer and an error on the same play scored Dupps. Spencer Coop then reached on a fielder's choice to score Porta and give the Panthers a 4-3 lead.

Spalding (8-3) tied the score in the seventh on an RBI single by Isaac Lineberry and went ahead in the eighth on a Garrett Wilson RBI single. Hanover got runners to second and third in the bottom of the eighth but failed to score and went down in order in the ninth to suffer the loss.

Dupps went 3-for-4 with a double to lead Hanover's offense while Porta and Drew Kelly each had doubles.

Eli Copner (3-1) pitched three and a third innings in relief of starter Brody Summers and suffered the loss after allowing two earned runs on five hits with five strikeouts. Summers gave up three runs on five hits and walked five in four innings.

Hanover, now 5-5 on the season, travels to Methodist for three games this weekend starting on Saturday. Hanover then hosts Eureka on Wednesday.

Trine pulls away late to beat Hanover

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Trine outscored Hanover 8-2 in the second half to pull away for a 13-7 win in men's lacrosse Wednesday at Alumni Stadium.

The two teams took turns dominating the opening half with Hanover scoring four goals in the first quarter and Trine four in the second as the two squads went into the half tied at 5-5.

Trine opened the third quarter with five-straight goals and never looked back. Ian Kimmins and Patrick Boylston broke the run with back-to-back goals for Hanover to close the quarter, but Trine scored three more markers in the fourth to pull away.

Trine (3-0) held a 45-32 advantage in shots in the game, including 27-18 on goal. Hanover goalie Noah Dubrava played all 60 minutes in the net and stopped 14 shots.

Boylston scored two goals on six shots to lead Hanover.

Hanover, now 1-3 on the season, hosts Muskingum on Saturday and Albion on Sunday. The Panthers then host Transylvania (Ky.) on Wednesday.

Women fall at DePauw

Hanover's women's lacrosse team was limited to just 10 shots in a 17-3 loss at Depauw in Wednesday.

The Tigers (3-1) dominated both halves, posting a 6-0 scoring run to close the first half and blow open a 4-2 game, and outscoring the Panthers 8-1 in the second half to turn the game into a rout.

Milah Young scored two goals to lead Hanover. Julia Long (2-2) stopped 13 shots in 46 minutes of action.

Hanover, now 2-2 on the season, hosts Wisconsin-La-Crosse on Friday and travels to Heidelberg on Sunday. The Panthers travel to Franklin on Wednesday.

capitalize on and this year she was laser-focused on that 100 fly and we knew that there was nothing that was going to stop her. We knew that there was going to be a time drop, we were pretty sure there was going to be a school record. We were getting a little selfish about it."

But grabbing that No. 2 seed? That was a surprise to everybody, including Belle herself. She ended up placing fifth in the event in the finals but considering the strength of the field she was up against, it was still an impressive showing.

"I think it was just surprising. To be seeded second for Saturday was just crazy. I would never have expected that," Belle said. "And then Saturday, fifth was super exciting as well. Not as exciting as second, but it was really cool. That's the highest I've ever been seeded. Last year and as a freshman, I don't think I was in the final heat at all. To be in the final heat this year in both events was really cool."

Her time of 1:03.26 set a new school record in the 100 fly and her time only slipped slightly in the finals to 1:03.99 while placing fifth. She was also eighth in the 100 backstroke in 1:07.80 and helped the 200 medley relay team place sixth in 2:10.65 and the 400 freestyle relay team place ninth in 4:32.88. Southwestern scored 92 points as a team with Belle accounting for 69 points either as an individual or on a relay team.

The 92 points were good for eighth out of 14 teams, an impressive showing considering that Southwestern had only four swimmers in total.

"We're small but full of talent. The relays didn't place too well, but were super, super, super good," Belle said. "For having only four to choose from and it was Audrey's (Bare) first year since seventh grade and she did amazing. And Amiah (Owen) improved a lot too. Everybody got better and I was really proud of both of them."

The ripples in the pool have barely stopped and Belle is already planning for next year. Her goal is to reach the state finals in the 100 fly, a task that will require her to either win the event at the sectional or post a qualifying time amongst all swimmers statewide.

To help Belle achieve that goal, Jay Crawford has already got a plan in place to help his daughter get faster.

"Her technique and her stroke is pretty close to where we want it. There's always things that we can do to make her quicker, faster and more efficient. But I think the biggest thing for her between now and next season is the weight room," Jay Crawford said. "I mentioned that to her and I think she got a little scared because as a girl, she probably thinks that I don't want to be bulky and big but that's not what it's about. It's about getting stronger. It's about working on those muscle groups that are going to increase her speed in the butterfly as well as other strokes."

If there is one thing that is certain, it's not to discount her chances. That little girl who grew up around the pool has always dreamed big and now she is close to making it a reality.

"I don't remember how old I was, but I was at the girls sectionals and it was the 100 fly and I was looking at the girl that won after the final heat, going up on the podium to get her ribbon and I told Shelly that I'm going to do that one day, that's going to be me," Belle said. "As I got older, I thought that was kind of a silly thing to say. But now, the fact that it could be true next year is unbelievable. I would never have thought."

category ranking first in points per game (18.8), rebounds per game (9.0), field goal percentage (55.7) and 3-point percentage (47.2). Her 55.7 percent shooting from the field also landed her 21st among NCAA Division III student-athletes while ranking in the top 50 in points per game. Nall finished the season with a team-best seven double-doubles while posting single game best in assists (5), blocks (3), and 3-point field goals made (4).

Off the court, Nall plans on attending Bellarmine's Physical Therapy School. Nall, who is majoring in Kinesiology and Integrative Physiology, has made the Dean's List three consecutive semesters. The senior exemplifies what it means be a Division III student-athlete as she serves as a member of Phi Mu Rho Chapter, Student Athlete Advisory Board and a women's basketball camp counselor the past two summers.

— Madison's Jade Nutley and Switzerland County's Aleiah Thomas have each been honored by the Indiana Basketball Coaches Association as IBCA/Subway All-State Selections.

Nutley, a junior, was named an Underclassmen Honorable Mention selection. Thomas, a senior, was named a Senior Honorable Mention selection.

The IBCA/Subway All-State teams are selected through a process organized by the IBCA and presented by Subway Restaurants of Indiana. All IBCA-member head coaches have the opportunity to nominate players. A panel of 20 IBCA coaches — 16 from the current regional areas, three district representatives (one each from IHSAA Districts 1, 2 and 3) and the committee chairman — then meets to review the nominations, vote and finalize the selections.

As part of the partnership, Subway will provide plaques to Supreme 15 honorees and certificates to players receiving Large School All-State, Small School All-State or Honorable Mention all-state recognition. Those items will be available to each recipient's coach at the annual IBCA Clinic in April, allowing her coach to present the award to each player.

— Shawe's Ethan Stuart, Southwestern's Austin Kramer and Foster Mefford and Switzerland County's Damian Breeck have all been named to the All-Ohio River Valley Conference Boys Basketball Team in voting by league coaches.

Joining the local quartet on the All-ORVC team are: Jac-Cen-Del — Brandon Baber and Wyatt Day; Milan — Carsyn Ascherman, Adam Norman, Carter Wade and Peyton Wert; Rising Sun — T.J. Manifold; and South Ripley — Bryce Franklin and Cody Samples.

Milan's Matt Riehle was named the Mental Attitude Award winner while Milan's Randy Combs was named Coach of the Year.

— Hanover College's women's basketball team dominated the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference postseason awards which were announced on Thursday.

Alexis Nall, a senior from Mount Vernon, was named Player of the Year for the second-straight year. Head coach John Jones was named Coach Of the Year, senior Katie Hartman, a Madison High School graduate, was named to the All-HCAC First-Team, junior Savannah Courtney was named to the All-HCAC Second Team, and senior Brooke Todd, a Switzerland County High School graduate, was named to an All-HCAC Honorable Mention selection.

Anderson's Hannah Hawkins was named Defensive Player of the Year while Mount St. Joseph's Chloe Jansen was named Freshman of the Year.

— Hanover College's men's basketball team had three players honored by the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference.

Isaac Hibbard, a junior from New Albany, and Kevin Williams, a senior from Edinburgh, were named to the All-HCAC Second Team while Logan Ratts, a senior from Martinsville, was an Honorable Mention selection.

Rose-Hulman's Craig McGee was named Player of the Year and Anderson's Maurice Knight was named Defensive Player of the Year. Transylvania's Brandon Cromwell was named Freshman of the Year and Franklin's Kerry Prather was named Coach of the Year.

"It's exciting and a great accomplishment for these swimmers to make divisional and state qualifying times. It's rewarding for them to be able to swim at this level of competition because it shows the hard work they put into practices all season," H2O swim parent Marisol Schutte said. "I can't wait to see our swimmers perform their best during Swimming Championship Month."

RACHEL ANN NICE (MOTHER)
TRENT ALAN NICE (FATHER)

SUMMONS FOR SERVICE BY PUBLICATION & NOTICE OF CHILD IN NEED OF SERVICES HEARING

TO: Trent Alan Nice
Whereabouts unknown

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN to the above noted parent whose whereabouts are unknown, that the Indiana Department of Child Services has filed its Verified Petition Alleging the child to be in Need of Services, in accordance with I.C. 31-34-9-3, and that an adjudication hearing has been scheduled with the Court.

YOU ARE HEREBY COMMANDED to appear before the Judge of the Tippecanoe Superior Court 3, 301 Main Street, Lafayette, IN 47901, 765-423-9295 for a(n) Initial Hearing on Publication on 4/20/2020 at 9:00 AM, Fact Finding Hearing on 4/20/2020 at 9:00 AM, Disposition Hearing on 4/20/2020 at 9:00 AM and Hearing on 4/20/2020 at 9:00 AM At said hearing, the Court will consider the Petition and evidence thereon and will render its decision as to whether the above named minor child is child in need of services and shall enter adjudication accordingly. Your failure to appear after lawful notice will be deemed as your default and waiver to be present at said hearing.

UPON ENTRY OF SAID ADJUDICATION, A DISPOSITIONAL HEARING will be held in which the Court will consider (1) Alternatives for the care, treatment, or rehabilitation for the child; (2) The necessity, nature, and extent of your participation in the program of care, treatment, or rehabilitation for the child; and (3) Your financial responsibility for any services provided for the parent, guardian or custodian of the child including child support.

YOU MUST RESPOND by appearing in person or by an attorney within thirty (30) days after the last publication of this notice, and in the event you fail to do so, an adjudication on said petition, judgment by default, may be entered against you, or the court may proceed in your absence, without further notice.

BRIDGE

TRY TO HELP OUT YOUR PARTNER

When defending, not only is it important to watch all the spot-cards like a hawk, but it also pays to make your partner's life easy.

In today's deal, South's weak two-bid showed a six-card spade suit and 6-10 high-card points. North's jump to five spades asked his partner to go on to six with good trumps. South was happy to oblige.

What do you think the outcome should be after West leads the heart king?

At first glance, the slam looks easy. South wins the heart lead in the dummy, discards his two heart losers on dummy's top clubs, then plays a trump to the king and ace, losing one spade trick. However, a closer examination shows that there is a defense.

West led the club jack after winning with the trump ace. Seeing no reason to do anything else, East discarded a diamond. Declarer ruffed, drew trumps and claimed.

True, East made a mistake. Ruffing with the spade nine was indicated -- it couldn't hurt. Here it doesn't hurt East, but it definitely hurts South. After he overruffs with the spade jack, West's spade 10 is promoted as the setting trick.

However, West had a clever way to protect his partner from error. While South was cashing dummy's club winners, West should have followed suit with the five, seven and 10. When West won with the spade ace, he could have led not the club jack but the club three. As dummy's four would have been winning the trick, East would have ruffed to stop declarer from obtaining another discard. This would have effected the trump promotion.

Complaint Department at Shawe

Courier staff report

Complaining and lemonade have become the newest topics of the Shawe Memorial Jr./Sr. High School Theatre Department's upcoming play, "Complaint Department and Lemonade."

In a rapid succession of grievances, the play revolves around a complaint department, which handles complaints about everything from Oreo icing to kleptomania and from songs stuck in the head to the price of cheese. The play rotates each complaint so each character not only airs their own grievances, but must also focus on someone else's problem and assist them in their complaint.

The balanced script has no more than two people on stage at the same time, so some actors play multiple roles throughout the production. The Shawe students involved in the cast include Alexa Bomholt, Ryker Brooks, Paige Campbell, Brandon Cox, Alyssa Gross, Brady Lathrem, Kelly McClure, Jason Minnick, Tyus Stowe and Lakyn Tingle. Caleb Davis and Lilly Waller helped as designers and crew members include Ryker Brooks, Brandon Cox, Caleb Davis, Harlee Hill, Hiep Ngo and Lilly Waller. The play is directed by Shawe Memorial Theatre teacher Kelly Rector.

"Complaint Department and Lemonade" will be performed March 13 and 14 at 7 p.m. at Shawe Memorial Jr./Sr. High School. Tickets can be purchased at the door for $10 for adults, $5 students and children 5 and under are free.

Don't settle with service of hairstyler when it is not liked

Annie Lane

Dear Annie: I've had the same woman, "Veronica," doing my hair for several years now. She also does my pedicures and massages. I love her shop and all of her co-workers, but I've never been very happy with how she cuts and colors my hair.

It usually takes a week or more to get my hair back to how I like it after each appointment. I've talked with her about it, but nothing has changed. When Veronica was out having surgery, "Kirsten," one of her employees, did my hair, and I liked it a lot better. I want to start having Kirsten do my hair, but Veronica is very sensitive and tends to get defensive. Any suggestions? — Hairy Situation

Dear Hairy Situation: I know that it's the easiest advice to give and the hardest advice to follow, but I'll say it anyway. Be honest. Stay positive yet truthful. Make the focus how much you liked how Kirsten did your hair, rather than the fact that you don't like how Veronica does it. Tell her how much you love her pedicures and massages and would like to keep seeing her for those.

If you feel too bad to speak up, try this useful thought experiment: If you were in her shoes and a customer expressed all that to you, would you be angry? It's your hair. Anyone less than the best won't cut it.

Dear Annie: I recently saw a letter to you about workplace body odor. Years ago, we had a similar situation. We had to work in very close quarters, and one person who worked the very early morning shift had a real problem. Everyone talked about how awful it was; however, nobody did anything but jabber about it. Feeling bad for that person, I went into the small room, asked the person whether they knew that we were friends and all, and got a "Yes, of course, why?" I politely said, "Your day has lasted longer than your deodorant," and presented that person a salt crystal deodorant to try. There was never a problem after that! — Compassionate Sniffer

Dear Compassionate Sniffer: Kudos for resolving an awkward situation using empathy and generosity.

Dear Annie: I would like to add some advice for the 95-year-old man, "Lonely," who has been lonely since his wife died. As someone who has lost a loved one, I can understand how he feels. A support group is helpful and a possible place to meet people, but not people who are ready for a relationship. I wasn't ready for a while and had turned down dates for a long time. I had a friend who encouraged me to join a running/walking club after my loss, and it was the best thing I have ever done. I was not a fast runner, so at first I was hesitant. But after I joined, I realized that no one cared how fast I was. Everyone was friendly, supportive and encouraging. To this day my friends are people from the Manasota Track Club. In fact, that is how I met my current husband. We met on a New Year's Day morning run on the beach.

I recommend he join a club that interests him. In our club, there are people in their 80s and 90s who walk, and even some who run. Walking with people not only improves your cardiovascular health but also benefits your emotional health. You feel better after walking or running with good friends. And it gets you out of the house! — Betsie

Dear Betsie: That last point alone is reason enough to get involved with an organization of some kind. Thank you for sharing how picking up a simple hobby can be invigorating, even life-changing.
